Performance update

The Hunter Global Fixed Interest Fund's performance was ahead of benchmark again in August with nominal returns also slightly positive despite a general rise in interest rates this month.

This month saw positive contributions from interest rate strategies, particularly the underweight duration position in Japan where yields moved higher especially at the long end of the yield curve. Our underweight to investment grade credit also added value as credit spreads widened over the month.

Detractors this month included an overweight to UK duration, especially around the ten-year maturity where yields rose, an underweight to Chinese duration and our holdings in inflation linked assets as inflation "break evens" moved lower.

Investment markets

August was a difficult month for investors as markets grappled with mixed economic data, negative news from China and the implications of the annual "Jackson Hole symposium". This saw general weakness in both equity and bond markets.

Bond markets sold off sharply in the first half of the month following "hawkish" comments from Chairman Powell at Jackson hole, Fitch downgrading the U.S's credit rating and stronger than expected economic data. While in Japan, investors pushed longer yields up as they tested the boundaries on the BOJ's Yield Curve Control program. Germany and China were the only major markets which saw bond yields fall.

Equity markets were also weaker in August with major indices all down on their July closes. A few individual companies (A-I related) bucked the trend amongst a general malaise. Despite the weakness in August, equity markets year to date performance remains impressive.

Looking forward, markets remain data focussed, equities pricing a "soft landing" and looking for confirmation while bond markets remain sceptical that inflation can be controlled without a somewhat harder landing.

Portfolio positioning

PIMCO continues to maintain a cautious view towards both interest rates and corporate credit, still focusing on relative value positions and diversified alpha strategies.

The Fund's overall duration remained at 5.8 years in August, 0.9 years less than the benchmark's duration of 6.7 years.

The bulk of the underweight duration position is in Japan and Emerging Markets with a smaller underweight to core Europe. PIMCO remains slightly overweight non-core Europe, Australia and the UK. Duration exposure to the US is close to neutral.

In terms of the yield curve, the Fund is underweight in the 1-3 years maturities, slightly overweight 3-5 years with a larger overweight to the 5–10 years portion of the curve. The Fund's largest yield curve position remains its underweight to 10 years plus maturities. This positioning is premised on an expected positive steepening of the curve, pivoting around 10-year maturities, as inflation normalises.

The Fund remains underweight corporate credit generally, targeting financials and non-cyclicals, resulting in a portfolio with high credit quality, with an average rating of AA.

US Federal Reserve "tapering" expectations also sees PIMCO remaining underweight the agency and semigovernment sectors but retaining an overweight exposure to the mortgage sector. Securitised assets remain PIMCO's preferred way to take spread exposure offering greater default protection in the current environment.

Currency strategies remain largely tactical or target portfolio diversification. Currently the fund is overweight the Australian dollar, yen, Emerging market currencies, and non-EMU Europe predominantly against the North American dollar bloc with a smaller underweight to the Euro.

The Fund continues to have a small allocation to inflation-linked bonds.

ESG Integration (PIMCO)

At PIMCO, we define ESG Integration as the integration of material ESG factors into investment research. We believe incorporating ESG factors should be part of a robust investment process. We recognize that ESG factors are increasingly material inputs into our understanding of global economies, markets, industries and business models. Whether climate change, income inequality, shifting consumer preferences, regulatory risks, human capital management or unethical conduct, ESG factors are important considerations when evaluating long-term investment opportunities. These factors are evaluated across markets and assets classes where applicable. Our commitment to ESG integration was one of the main drivers that led PIMCO to become a signatory to the Principles of Responsible Investment (PRI) in September 2011.

The integration of ESG factors into PIMCO's investment process seeks to account for material ESG risks in both top-down macro positioning and bottom-up security evaluation. To the extent that ESG risks are material for particular sectors, issuers, etc., our fundamental credit views will reflect this. While ESG scores play a role in security selection for portfolios that follow ESG strategies and guidelines, they are not a criterion for security selection in portfolios that do not follow ESG strategies and guidelines. Additionally, integrating material ESG factors into the evaluation process does not mean that ESG information is the sole consideration for an investment decision; instead, PIMCO's portfolio managers and analyst teams evaluate a variety of factors, which can include ESG considerations, to make investment decisions. By integrating material ESG factors into the evaluation process, PIMCO is increasing the total amount of information assessed to generate a more holistic view of an investment, in efforts to deliver the best performance outcomes for our clients.
